

About the Faculty

ANDREA M. PARK joined the Massachusetts Law Reform Institute (MLRI) as a housing and homelessness staff attorney in 2016. Prior to that, she worked as an assistant attorney general in the Civil Rights and Consumer Protection Divisions of the Massachusetts Attorney General's Office, as an attorney at the Harvard Legal Aid Bureau on an innovative foreclosure defense project partnering lawyers and community organizers, and as a staff attorney at Community Legal Aid in Worcester specializing in housing, foreclosure, consumer, and bankruptcy litigation. In 2015, Ms. Park was honored by the Harvard Law and International Development Society and Harvard Women's Law Association in their International Women's Day portrait exhibit entitled "Women Inspiring Change." She holds a B.A. from Tufts University, an M.A. from the University of Chicago, and a J.D. from the University of Minnesota Law School, where she served as director of the Indian Child Welfare Act Clinic. Ms. Park grew up in East Tennessee and is a lifelong musician.

KELLY TURLEY joined the staff of the Massachusetts Coalition for the Homeless in 2002, where she now serves as the Associate Director. She has been an advocate with and for people experiencing homelessness and poverty since 1997. At the Coalition, Kelly collaborates with various stakeholders to develop public policy strategies to create access to homelessness prevention benefits, safety net resources, and affordable housing opportunities for families with children, unaccompanied youth, and adults throughout the Commonwealth. Her work focuses on expanding equity, dignity, and opportunity in state-funded housing and cash assistance programs, and upholding the human right to housing. In addition to her housing and homelessness advocacy, Kelly is a long-time yoga practitioner, dance student, and international human rights activist.

ELIZABETH ALFRED is an attorney at Greater Boston Legal Services, where her practice centers on all types of advocacy related to families in the Emergency Assistance family shelter system in Massachusetts. Prior to GBLS, Liz worked at Central West Justice Center and Community Legal Aid, representing low-income clients needing shelter, facing eviction, and facing denials or terminations from public and subsidized housing. Liz is a graduate of Smith College and New England Law | Boston.

TALYA GUENZBURGER is a paralegal at Greater Boston Legal Services, where she helps staff a weekly housing clinic at Rosie's Place and assists in representing individuals facing eviction, termination from public and subsidized housing, and difficulty accessing the EA shelter system. She graduated from Brandeis University in 2020.

CATHERINE ADY-BELL has been a staff attorney with the Central West Justice Center in Springfield since 2016. She focuses on shelter and other public benefits advocacy. Prior to becoming a staff attorney, she worked as an AmeriCorps attorney with CWJC for two years doing public housing eviction defense. She has an undergraduate degree in social work and graduated from Western New England University's School of Law in 2014.
