Are you a low-income community college student struggling to afford food?

You might be eligible for SNAP benefits!

Low-income college students who meet certain eligibility rules might be eligible for SNAP to help buy groceries - up to $192 per month for one person!

Community college students may be eligible for SNAP if their course of study is likely to lead to employment or is a career or technical education program. These students do not have to work 20 hours per week or get Work-Study to be eligible for SNAP.

Students who live with their parents and are under 22 must apply for SNAP with their parents. There are other rules students must meet to be eligible. Go to DTAConnect.com to apply for SNAP. For more information, visit: Masslegalservices.org/food4students

Produced by the Massachusetts Law Reform Institute, June 2018.