You can use this form to self-declare your shelter costs. You do not need to provide a lease, rent receipt or proof of homeownership costs unless DTA determines that the information provided is questionable. You can use this form to notify your DTA worker of these expenses. Be sure to tell DTA if you pay for any heating or cooling (AC) costs separate from your rent (any time of year) or if you get fuel assistance to pay part of your rent.

DTA does require proof of where you live (your residence). This is different from how much you pay for rent or mortgage. To verify residence, you can use a bank statement, wage stub or photo ID with your address, a utility bill, a letter from a government agency with your address, a lease, statement from a roommate or other document that prove your address.

If you have child care expenses because of work, training, or job search, you can self-declare these costs. You do not need to provide a statement from your child care provider unless the information you provide is questionable. You can also claim the cost of care needed for a disabled adult while you work or go to school, such as adult day care services or care provided in your home for a disabled adult child, an elderly/disabled parent or other disabled household member.

You can self-declare these expenses on your Food Stamp/SNAP application form, recertification form or on any written statement you send DTA. Your monthly benefits should increase because of these costs, unless you are already getting the maximum SNAP benefits for your household.
